Human Rights and the United Nations

This page collects trusted resources for learning more about human rights and the work the United Nations does to protect them.

Recommended Resources

- Universal Declaration of Human Rights (United Nations)

  The official UN page presenting all thirty articles of the UDHR, the document adopted in 1948.

  Why it's useful: It's the primary source for what human rights are, so everything else on this site traces back to it.

- Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR)

  The UN agency responsible for monitoring human rights violations around the world.

  Why it's useful: It shows how the UN actually works on human rights day to day, not just what it says on paper.

- What We Do: Amnesty International

  An independent human rights organization that investigates abuses and advocates for change.

  Why it's useful: It gives a view from outside the UN, including how civil society groups hold governments accountable.

- Human Rights Watch

  An international non-governmental organization that publishes research reports and news on human rights issues by country.
